Arrestada acusada de robar a una persona mayor

El 11 de noviembre de 2026, agentes del Departamento de Policía de Oxnard acudieron a un centro de asistencia para personas mayores, ubicado en la cuadra 1100 de la calle Dahlia, en el norte de Oxnard. Los agentes entrevistaron a una víctima de 75 años, quien informó que, durante las últimas semanas, había notado la desaparición de dinero de su cartera. La víctima instaló una cámara oculta en su residencia, la cual captó a una mujer entrando a su vivienda y sustrayendo dinero de su bolso y billetera mientras la víctima

Si está buscando empleo, ¡los estafadores lo están buscando a usted!

Por Mark Hedin

Es la triste realidad: ¡Si se ve demasiado bueno para ser verdad, tenga cuidado!

En esta era del "Wild West" (Oeste Salvaje) en la que aún existen portales en línea que en gran medida no están regulados como Instagram, WeChat, Tik Tok entre otros; la Comisión Federal de Comercio está luchando contra una nueva ola de delincuencia: enormes redes de delincuentes que ofrecen formas falsas pero aparentemente reales de ganar dinero.

"Hay toda una serie de prácticas comerciales horribles que utilizan los estafadores", dijo Kati Daffan, de la división de Prácticas de Marketing (Mercadeo) de la FTC, en una conferencia de prensa el 9 de agosto, organizada por la FTC (Comisión Federal de Comercio) y Ethnic Media Services.

"Estas estafas están teniendo un impacto increíble", afirmó Daffan. En lo que va de año, la agencia ha recibido 26,000 reportes de fraude que describen pérdidas de 223 millones de dólares por falsos

It's a sad fact of life: If it seems too good to be true, beware!

Por Mark Hedin

In this Wild West era of still largely unregulated online portals such as Instagram, WeChat, Tik Tok and others, the Federal Trade Commission is battling a new crime wave: huge networks of criminals offering fake but real-seeming ways to make money.

"There's a whole range of different, horrible business practices scammers use," Kati Daffan, of the FTC's Marketing Practices division, said at an Aug. 9 press briefinghosted by the FTC and Ethnic Media Services.

"These schemes are having an incredible impact," Daffan said. Already this year, the agency has fielded 26,000 fraud reports describing $223 million lost to fake job and "big opportunity" scams.

And that's just the ones that have been reported, she noted, adding scams in general are unreported, especially by communities of color. "We know that's just a fraction of what's actually happening to people," she said.

The scams range from offers of what appear to be job opportunities to "coaching scams" that claim they'll quickly teach no se encontraba en el lugar. La pérdida total acumulada durante esas semanas fue de aproximadamente 700 dólares en efectivo.

Los investigadores lograron identificar a la sospechosa como Janet Mendoza, de 20 años, quien se desempeña como cuidadora en dicho centro. El 19 de noviembre, detectives de la Unidad de Delitos contra la Propiedad —específicamente de la División de Falsificación y Fraude— del Departamento de Policía de Oxnard realizaron labores de seguimiento y lograron localizar a Mendoza —quien ya había sido despedida del centro—, procediendo a su detención en su domicilio. Mendoza fue fichada en la cárcel del condado de Ventura bajo cargos de robo (allanamiento) y abuso contra una persona mayor.

La Unidad de Delitos contra la Propiedad del Departamento de Policía de Oxnard mantiene su compromiso de reducir los robos y otros delitos contra la propiedad en la ciudad de Oxnard mediante la aplicación estricta de la ley. empleos y estafas de "grandes oportunidades".

Y eso son sólo las que se han denunciado, señaló, añadiendo que en general las estafas no se denuncian, especialmente por parte de las comunidades de color. "Sabemos que es sólo una pequeña parte de lo que realmente le ocurre a la gente", dijo.

Las estafas van desde ofertas de lo que parecen ser oportunidades de trabajo a "estafas de coaching" (entrenamiento) que afirman que le enseñarán rápidamente cómo ganar dinero invirtiendo en bienes raíces, el mercado de valores, o diversas estrategias de autoempleo, y más.

Describió un caso cerrado por la FTC, "My Online Business Education". En ese caso, la FTC consiguió el año pasado devolver 23 millones de dólares a personas que habían sido estafadas intentando aprender a ganar dinero.

La FTC dispone de más información sobre este tipo de estafa en particular en ftc.gov/IncomeScams.

Haga un esfuerzo adicional para evitar ser estafado

"Todos somos potencialmente vulnerables a las formas cada vez más sofisticadas y variadas en que individuos y organizaciones de todo el mundo engañan a la gente para sacarles el dinero que tanto les ha costado ganar.

Ella y su colega, Rosario Méndez, compartieron algunos ejemplos de estos trucos y algunas estrategias para evitarlos.

Entre sus sugerencias destacan: Tenga cuidado e investigue. Por ejemplo, según Daffan, cuando se trata de falsas ofertas de trabajo que pueden costarle dinero, los estafadores son cada vez mejores a la hora de aparentar legitimidad.

Si alguien lo contacta afirmando que una empresa quiere contratarlo, o que está ayudando a un empleador a encontrar trabajadores, compruébelo. Haga un esfuerzo adicional, investigue sobre esa empresa, busque su número de teléfono sin fiarse de los números que le han proporcionado y llámelos para asegurarse de que realmente están contratando personal para ese puesto que está considerando, así como de que las personas con las que hable son realmente las que contratan.

"Hay que dar el paso adicional de ponerse en contacto con la empresa para saber que es legítima", afirma Daffan. "Eso es realmente lo más seguro hoy en día".

Hay más información sobre este tipo de estafas en ftc.gov/

Jurado declara culpable a sospechoso de provocar los devastadores incendios de Los Ángeles

Un jurado del estado de California declaró este viernes culpable a un hombre acusado de provocar uno de los devastadores incendios que asolaron el condado de Los Ángeles en enero de 2025, que dejó al menos 29 muertos y más de 16,000 estructuras destruidas.

Los fiscales federales hallaron culpable a Jonathan Rinderknecht, de 30 años, de los dos cargos federales que se le imputaban: destrucción de propiedad mediante incendio e incendio provocado que afectó a propiedad utilizada en el comercio interestatal.

La condena queda en manos del juez federal, quien evaluará los informes de las partes y el impacto de los daños antes de dictar sentencia el próximo 17 de marzo.

El acusado se enfrenta a una pena de entre 5 y 40 años de prisión, según informaron los fiscales.

Rinderknecht recibió el pasado agosto una nueva acusación por parte del Departamento de Justicia de EE.UU, por supuestamente provocar un incendio el primer día de 2025 que, según la fiscalía, ardió lentamente durante una semana hasta convertirse en uno de los siniestros más mortales de Los Ángeles, el de Palisades, en una de las zonas más acaudaladas de la ciudad.

Las autoridades señalaron que Rinderknecht, que trabajaba como conductor de Uber, fue al sendero Skull Rock, caminó por la zona y grabó videos, mientras escuchaba una canción cuyo video mostraba objetos incendiándose. Poco después, se detectó el inicio del fuego, y aunque intentó llamar al 911, no logró comunicarse de inmediato.

El incendio de Palisades, el más violento de un conjunto de fuegos que devastaron grandes vecindarios en enero pasado en Los Ángeles, arrasó casi 9,500 hectáreas y quemó más de 6,000 estructuras.

Los devastadores incendios que asolaron por más de tres semanas el condado de Los Ángeles el enero de 2025, provocando pérdidas inmobiliarias que podrían superar los 30,000 millones de dólares, y pasarán a la historia como uno de los desastres naturales más costosos de EE.UU..

Cómo manejar la dinámica familiar con gracia

Por Annie Lane

Querida Annie: Me encantó leer las diferentes respuestas de ambas abuelas en el "Dilema de la nuera". Tengo la suerte de ser la nuera de las personas más maravillosas. Mi esposo es el menor de siete hijos, y todos tienen dos o tres hijos propios. Tenemos dos hijos, de 19 y 20 años, y coincidimos en que los jovenes suelen gravitar más hacia la familia de la mujer, lo que ha sido cierto en nuestra experiencia. Mi esposo no es del tipo que se acerca, pero no es porque no le importe.

Mi solución ha sido organizar las fiestas para ambos lados de la familia. Sí, es enorme y caótico, pero ver a los primos de ambos lados juntos y ver a mi esposo disfrutar de su tiempo con sus hermanos, mientras yo disfruto del mío, ¡es increíble! Me aseguro de llamar a sus padres con regularidad y ponerlos en altavoz. También planeo viajes dos veces al año para visitarlos desde que se jubilaron fuera del país, lo que garantiza que nuestros hijos estén tan cerca de sus padres como de los míos.

¿El resultado después de 25 años? ¡Ambas partes de nuestras familias se quieren e incluso hacen planes por su cuenta para reunirse! Sé que llegará un momento en que mis hijos se casen y se vayan, y estoy de acuerdo con cualquier desequilibrio en el tiempo que pasen juntos, siempre y cuando sean felices. Siempre estoy dispuesta a iniciar reuniones y ofrecer ayuda sin excederme. Una actitud positiva ayuda mucho. Su familia nunca se ha sentido despreciada o excluida porque los valoro tanto como a los míos, y aprecio cuánto él también ama a mis padres. -- Cuantos más, mejor

Querida The More the Merrier: ¡Qué carta tan maravillosa! Te escuchas muy bondadosa y muy considerada. Supongo que tus hijos se casarán con mujeres similares a ti, y el hermoso ciclo de tener a ambos grupos de abuelos involucrados continuará cuando seas abuela. ¡Bravo!

Querida Annie: Agradezco tus comentarios sobre "Walk Away", una mujer que pide orientación sobre cómo sentirse bien al alejarse de miembros tóxicos de la familia (en este caso, una madre narcisista).

He estado en la situación de "Walked Away" antes con varios miembros de la familia. Lo siguiente me ha ayudado enormemente:

A menudo se dice que alejarse tiene que ver con amarse a uno mismo... pero alejarse también tiene que ver con amarlos. Alejarse les da espacio para reflexionar sobre sí mismos si pueden y una oportunidad de cambiar si lo desean. Honrar sus elecciones de libre albedrío de ser como son también es un acto de amor.

Gracias por prestar atención a esto. Se necesita valor para alejarse. -- Walk Away

Querida Walk Away: Gracias por tu carta.

PROTEJA LOS BENEFICIOS ¡REPORTE EL FRAUDE DE BENEFICIOS!

¿QUE SE CONSIDERA FRAUDE DEL WELFARE (BENEFICIOS) EN CALIFORNIA?

Bajo la ley de California, el fraude de welfare se refiere a los actos fraudulentos donde las personas proveen información falsa o incorrecta para obtener beneficios gubernamentales como el Medi-Cal o estampillas de comida a los cuales legalmente no tendrían derecho.

¿VE ALGO? ¡DIGA ALGO!

Si usted sospecha fraude de welfare, su reporte puede asegurar que los programas de asistencia pública continúen estando disponibles para los que verdaderamente califican y necesitan los beneficios. El reporte puede ser anónimo. No necesita tener pruebas para hacer un reporte.Todos los reportes se mantienen confidenciales en lo que permite la ley.

LA INFORMACION QUE DEBE PROVEER PARA REPORTAR EL FRAUDE

- Nombre, domicilio, números de teléfonos, fechas, actividad especifica sobre la persona que se sospecha está cometiendo fraude.
- Descripción de cómo están cometiendo fraude (p.ej. ingreso escondido, residentes no revelados, o dependientes falsos)
- Entre mas detalles provea, hay mas probabilidad que los investigadores desarrollen el caso, aun si usted permanece anónimo.

IMPACTO DEL FRAUDE DE BENEFICIOS

Efectos Económicos: ¡Los programas de asistencia pública son financiados con dólares de los contribuyentes! Las solicitudes fraudulentas desvían billones de dólares anualmente estimado entre $233 billones y $521 billones en EE. UU. Desviando los servicios públicos como el cuidado de salud, educación, e infraestructura.

Desconfianza Pública: Al propagarse la deshonestidad puede crear escepticismo hacia el sistema de welfare, creando dificultad para que las agencias mantengan el apoyo público para los programas designados a asistir a las poblaciones vulnerables.

Recursos Limitados Para Los Solicitantes Legítimos: El fraude de welfare afecta a todos. Los recursos valiosos son desviados de las familias, niños/niñas, personas mayores e individuos que genuinamente necesitan la asistencia. Las agencias emplean recursos adicionales para combatir el fraude, resultando en tiempos de proceso mas largos, requisitos de verificación adicionales y el aumento en buscar los solicitantes legítimos.

TIPOS DE FRAUDE

FRAUDE DE INGRESOS Y BIENES

- No declarar todos los ingresos del hogar, incluidos los provenientes de empleos o actividades secundarias, para aparentar tener bajos ingresos.
- Esconder dinero, propiedad, o ahorros
- Falsificar el ingreso para calificar para los beneficios

FRAUDE DE HOGAR O SITUACION DE VIVIENDA

- No incluir miembros del hogar para esconder su ingreso
- Recibir beneficios mientras vive en otro estado o condado
- No declarar cuando la pareja regresa a vivir en el hogar, especialmente para beneficios de welfare o housing

FRAUDE DE IDENTIDAD Y SOLICITUD

- Usar el número de seguro social o identidad de otra persona para solicitar beneficios
- Hacer solicitudes en varios estados o bajo diferentes nombres
- Utilizar documentos falsos o hacer declaraciones falsas en la solicitud

MAL USO Y VENTA DE BENEFICIOS

- Vender las tarjetas EBT o beneficios por dinero en efectivo
- Utilizar beneficios para comprar artículos no permitidos, como alcohol con estampillas de comida, u obtener dinero en efectivo de los comerciantes

La captura del narco mexicano 'Chapo Isidro', uno de los más buscados, deja veinte muertos

Integrantes del Ejercito Mexicano custodian las instalaciones de la Fiscalía Especializada en materia de Delincuencia Organizada (FEMDO).

El operativo en el que fue detenido el narcotraficante mexicano Fausto Isidro Meza Flores, alias el 'Chapo Isidro', uno de los más buscados del país, dejó veinte personas muertas, entre ellas cuatro militares, informó este lunes el Gobierno, que reconoció que el grupo criminal sigue activo.

El secretario de la Defensa Nacional, Ricardo Trevilla Trejo, explicó -en rueda de prensa- que, luego del operativo del sábado -en Guasave, Sinaloa (noroeste)- las autoridades localizaron a otros nueve presuntos integrantes del grupo criminal fallecidos, lo que elevó a dieciséis la cifra de muertos de la banda. Además, cuatro militares murieron y otros diez resultaron heridos.

La presidenta de México, Claudia Sheinbaum, recordó a los militares uniformados como "cuatro hombres muy preparados, pero sobre todo con mucha entrega al país" y expresó sus condolencias.

Trevilla anunció honores fúnebres para los militares este lunes en los lugares elegidos por sus familias y el apoyo de la Comisión Ejecutiva de Atención a Víctimas, así como de autoridades estatales.

Junto a Meza Flores murieron sus primos Germán, alias Serafín, y Pánfilo, al igual que su cuñado José Luis; identificados por Defensa como segundo al mando, operador logístico y operador financiero, respectivamente, de una facción aliada de Los Mayos, y que pertenece al Cartel de Sinaloa.

El operativo se llevo a cabo en medio de violentos enfrentamientos en el norte de Sinaloa, con bloqueos viales e incendios de vehículos, que provocaron pánico entre la población.

"Por supuesto, hay un remanente de personas también relevantes que eran colaboradores de este sujeto detenido. No podemos decir que (el grupo criminal) esté desarticulado", declaró el secretario de Seguridad, Omar García Harfuch, sobre la banda liderada por Meza Flores.

Las autoridades explicaron que 'Chapo Isidro', quien fue trasladado a una prisión de Ciudad de México, cuenta con una orden de aprehensión en México por delincuencia organizada y por cometer delitos contra la salud.

Igualmente, el detenido tiene una orden de extradición a los Estados Unidos "por asociación delictiva para distribuir droga en territorio estadounidense; además, se encuentra en la lista de los diez fugitivos más buscados por el FBI".

Aries. Ha llegado la hora de sentirte en plena forma, puede que hasta este momento no hayas contemplado el amor de la misma forma que hasta ahora. Es una pieza clave, pero quizás te falte algo más si deseas obtener un mejor resultado. Lo que olvidas en ocasiones son tus propios sentimientos que los basas en los demás. No te servirá de nada hacerlo. Escucha tus propias señales interiores.
Dinero y trabajo. El trabajo se puede materializar de la forma que desees, ahora es el día de empezar a ver la semana como algo positivo que puede acabar siendo mejor de lo esperado. Ha llegado la hora de sentirte bien y de no dejar nada por hacer. Tus sueños son siempre un pequeño paso hacia el éxito, nunca lo olvides.

Virgo. Es la manera en la que empiezas a ponerle nombre al amor la que hace que te sientas más unido o distante con esa persona con la que estás vinculado sentimentalmente, cuidado porque con esa sensación extra de buenas noticias te enfrentarás a algo nuevo que no podrás cambiar. Vivirás el momento mágico que llevas tiempo esperando y deseando. Las noticias son favorables a tus deseos.
Dinero y trabajo. Podrás reconocer abiertamente que hay algunos cambios y acontecimientos que son claves en esta semana. Cuando realmente empiezas a buscar una alternativa realista a aquello que necesitas te das cuenta de que es por un buen motivo. Sé consecuente con los hechos que te están rodeando y verás que puedes obtener muy buenos resultados.

Libra. Sufrirás las consecuencias de una serie de males mayores que pueden afectarte en gran medida. Estarás dispuesto a verlo como algo que realmente te puede estar haciendo feliz, pero no lo estás dejando florecer. Te empeñas en bloquear un momento agradable, no lo hagas durar tanto, puede que no merezca la pena hacerlo.
Dinero y trabajo. Es el trabajo lo que te preocupa. No son tiempos fáciles para una serie de constantes desfavorables que se repiten. Si crees que lo que hay de verdad a tu lado puede acabar siendo clave, ve a por ello. Es la hora de que te sientas especialmente afortunado en muchos aspectos que te apasionan. Si sientes devoción por lo que haces, todo irá bien.

Escorpión. Estarás siguiendo unas normas básicas de tipo sentimental para poder alzarte con el triunfo más absoluto. Por mucho que quieras que todo tenga un sentido no será así, te costará materializar algunos problemas internos. Los fantasmas que te rodean pueden ser más poderosos de lo que crees, por ello ándate con ojo.
Dinero y trabajo. Es la manera en la que empiezas a trabajar durante esta semana la que puede marcar totalmente la diferencia. Ten cuidado porque puede acabar siendo lo que te afecte más, esa desgana con la que empiezas y que tendrá unas consecuencias inesperadas en esta semana sino le pones remedio, cambia tu manera de enfocar el trabajo. Sé consecuente y pon interés en todo aquello que tienes entre manos.

Sagitario. En el amor siempre hay algunos ingredientes que acaban materializándose en la medida de lo posible. Ha llegado la hora de que te sientas totalmente enfocado en aquellos que sean más profundos y directos. Sé claro en cada uno de ellos y verás cómo la magia del amor acaba llenando de sorpresas agradables tu semana.
Dinero y trabajo. No esperarás que nada sea tal y como pensabas por estas fechas, la situación es la que es, y deberás adaptarte a ella. En tu nueva realidad, será indispensable que empieces a buscar una visualización clara de tu futuro profesional. Nada es como se podría esperar, pero debes confiar en que toda situación es cambiante, y mejorará.

Capricornio. En la mente de una persona que trabaja a todas horas por aquello que desea conseguir no existe la palabra imposible. Tus esperanzas están marcadas por el éxito más absoluto y directo. Exiges de una relación lo máximo y puedes encontrar eso que pensabas que estaría totalmente perdido.
Dinero y trabajo. El trabajo se acabará materializando como la mejor opción para invertir tu tiempo en esta semana. Te zambullirás en tus responsabilidades y compromisos como forma de lograr descifrar al mismo tiempo algunas dudas relacionadas con tu trabajo. La comunicación con el cliente se acabará convirtiendo en una necesidad que puede traer muy buenas vibraciones a tu semana.

Acuario. El amor puede acabar siendo determinante para ti en este fin de semana. En el momento en que la situación ha sido y será especialmente complicada te darás cuenta de que es por algo. Los problemas se acabarán materializando cuando la relación no termine de cuadrar como esperabas. Tendrás que poner en práctica tus habilidades y capear el temporal.
Dinero y trabajo. El trabajo será una de las áreas que mejor se te dará. Eres capaz de hacer lo que te gusta y en cierta manera es lo que acabarás consiguiendo crear, una serie de buenas sensaciones que serán sinónimo de avance en tu desempeño. Si te sientes bien haciendo lo que te gusta, los resultados serán inmejorables.

Piscis. Tus sueños serán lo que quieras que sean. Un amor romántico que tenga todo lo necesario para aportarte mejores sensaciones o una especie de amor marcado por la tensión del momento. La pasión es muy bonita, pero puede acabar desapareciendo o generando algunos enfrentamientos. Mantén la calma y una actitud siempre comunicativa ante cualquier desencuentro.
Dinero y trabajo. Cuidarás de tu empresa y lo harás con la mirada puesta a una serie de beneficios a largo plazo. No pienses en el presente, puede acabar siendo peor de lo que preveías, céntrate en el futuro porque de esta manera podrás planificar tu destino con más acierto, apuesta siempre por ti y no te vengas abajo.

U.S. Latino GDP hits high of $4.1 trillion, marking 'growth spot' for the nation

Report shows Latinos' economic consumption reached $2.7 trillion as they account for 30.6% of the GDP growth of the country

In 2023, Latino consumption reached $2.7 trillion. That makes its buying power 5% larger than the entire economy of the state of Texas ($2.58 trillion) and 25% larger than New York's economy ($2.17 trillion).

By Barbra Ramos UCLA

Latinos have once again powered major growth for the U.S. economy, according to a new report from researchers at UCLA and Cal Lutheran. The annual U.S. Latino GDP report found that the total economic output, or gross domestic product, of Latinos in the United States hit a record high, reaching $4.1 trillion in 2023, up from $3.7 trillion in 2022.

Similar to last year's report, this data shows that the GDP of the U.S. Latino population equates to the fifth largest in the world compared to other economies, topping India, the United Kingdom and France.

The 2025 U.S. Latino GDP Report is the eighth annual release that documents the large and rapidly growing economic contributions of Latinos in the United States. Produced by the UCLA Center for the Study of Latino Health and Culture and Cal Lutheran's Center for Economic Research and Forecasting, the researchers found that even with the COVID-19 pandemic, the Latino GDP also saw the fastest growth among major economies, including China, and outpaced even the broader economy in the United States when comparing 2019 to 2023.

This marks a "growth spot" for the national economy overall, according to co-author David Hayes-Bautista, a distinguished professor of medicine at UCLA who began the effort to track this data more than two decades ago. The contribution of Latinos to the overall U.S. economy has climbed in subsequent years, hitting $1.6 trillion in 2010 and $2.8 trillion in 2019, he added.

"Now surpassing the extraordinary milestone of $4 trillion, the U.S. Latino GDP illustrates just how vital Latino strength and resilience are for the nation's economy," said Matthew Fienup, executive director of the Center for Economic Research and Forecasting at Cal Lutheran and co-author of the report.

"As COVID-19 broke out, many researchers concluded that Latinos would face obstacles to maintaining their physical and financial security," said Hayes-Bautista, who also directs the Center for the Study of Latino Health and Culture at UCLA. "But the U.S. Latino GDP has recovered faster than the national GDP, despite suffering more from the pandemic."

Several factors contributed to the rapid growth, researchers said. The report looked at health, higher education attainment, consumer spending, income, population, labor force size and households of Latinos — all areas that saw increased rates of change that helped the Latino GDP grow.

A few highlights:

• In every year from 2010 to 2023, Latinos made faster gains in education than non-Latinos, with the number of Latinos earning bachelor's degrees or higher increasing by 125.3%.

• In 2023, Latino consumption reached $2.7 trillion. That makes its buying power 5% larger than the entire economy of the state of Texas ($2.58 trillion) and 25% larger than New York's economy ($2.17 trillion).

• Between 2010 and 2023, Latinos contributed an average of 726,000 workers every year to the labor force in the United States. They were also responsible for 58.7% of the growth of the U.S. labor force since 2010.

When it came to health, 2023 showed a stronger bounce back from COVID-19 than the year before. During the pandemic, the virus spiked to become the leading cause of death for Latinos. But in 2023, COVID was no longer among the top five causes of death in the U.S., and deaths due to the virus were lower for Latinos than non-Latinos. Overall, the Latino population's lower death rates from COVID and other health-related causes helped further the return of the "Latino healthy lifestyle advantage," as Hayes-Bautista called it, with Latino life expectancy numbers nearly reaching the pre-pandemic level of 3.1 years longer than non-Latino whites.

"This year's report documents the continued rebound of the Latino healthy lifestyle advantage," said Hayes-Bautista. "It is one of the major factors that drives the Latino GDP's tremendous growth."

Among the 10 largest GDPs globally, the U.S. Latino GDP was the third-fastest growing from 2010 to 2023. It also increased 2.7 times faster than the national non-Latino GDP within the U.S.

The report found that despite being just 19.5% of the U.S. population, Latinos were responsible for more than half (56.7%) of U.S. population growth between 2010 and 2023, increasing by nearly 1.2 million in 2023. Latinos also accounted for 30.6% of the national GDP growth.

"A growing GDP benefits all Americans by providing for a higher standard of living, increased opportunities for socio-economic mobility and improved wages and salaries," Fienup said. "At the same time that the growing U.S. Latino GDP drives growth of the overall U.S. GDP, all Americans will benefit for years to come from Latinos' hard work, resiliency and optimism."

This year's release marks the 29th full-length report that the team has produced as part of the larger research initiative that analyzes the contributions of the Latino population across various geographies. With recent publications going into even greater detail about different segments of the population, including the inaugural Latina GDP report, as well as reports solely covering areas like California and Texas, the U.S. Latino GDP project seeks to demonstrate how the economic impact of Latinos touches every corner of the nation.

What is Rubio's Big Plan? And Does it Lead to the White House?

By Ruben Navarrette

When I think about Secretary of State Marco Rubio, and lately that has happened a lot, I flash back 15 years to a clandestine meeting I was invited to attend in the basement of the U.S. Senate.

In case you didn't know -- and I didn't -- there are lower-level spaces inside the U.S. Capitol that include small, empty, windowless hideaway rooms used for confidential meetings. This is where lawmakers go to say things they don't want others to hear.

Rubio wasn't at the meeting, but two other Republican senators were. And the newly elected Cuban American senator from Florida was at the top of the agenda.

This was December 2011, and at least three things were happening at once. First, Republicans were getting ready to challenge President Barack Obama the following year even though they didn't yet know who their candidate would be. Second, the nation's immigrant communities were under assault, and the left was feeling betrayed because Obama had pivoted from promising immigration reform on the campaign trail to building his reputation as the deporter-in-chief. And third, Republicans had a promising rookie about whom they were really excited -- a self-described "son of exiles" who communicated beautifully and moved smoothly between Spanish and English.

That description became a whole kerfuffle. As reported by both The Washington Post and the St. Petersburg Times, Mario and Oriales Rubio came to Florida in 1956 - nearly early three years before the Cuban Revolution. They were immigrants, not exiles.

That distinction may not mean much to most Americans. But it means a lot to Cuban Americans, who are not known to forget when their ancestors arrived on these shores and under what circumstances.

No Latino I've spoken to about Rubio over the years believes the fact that he misidentified his parents' status was an innocent mistake -- not one. More often, they say it was an early "tell" that the Miami native was just slick enough to go far in politics.

He has. According to a recent Emerson College survey, Rubio holds a double-digit lead over Vice President JD Vance in a hypothetical race for the 2028 GOP nomination. About 44% of likely Republican primary voters picked Rubio as their preferred candidate. Only 24% chose Vance. This is a complete reversal from what the picture looked like last year, when Vance was the heir apparent to President Trump.

That was before the Iran war, which cost both Trump and Vance dearly. Whereas Trump usually stays the course, even when he is off course, Vance took a stab at the Potomac two-step. First, the vice president was against the war. Then he backed the war. Finally, after Republicans' drubbing in the midterms, he blamed the war.

The last one didn't sit well with Trump, who recently benched Vance by pulling him out of peace talks with Iranian officials.

Meanwhile, Rubio -- even though he is secretary of state -- has remarkably emerged from the Iran fiasco relatively unscathed. It's like he was part of the war, but the war wasn't part of him.

As a Latino columnist who has studied and written about Rubio since he was first elected to the Senate in 2010, I have strong feelings about him. The trouble is, those feelings are all over the map.

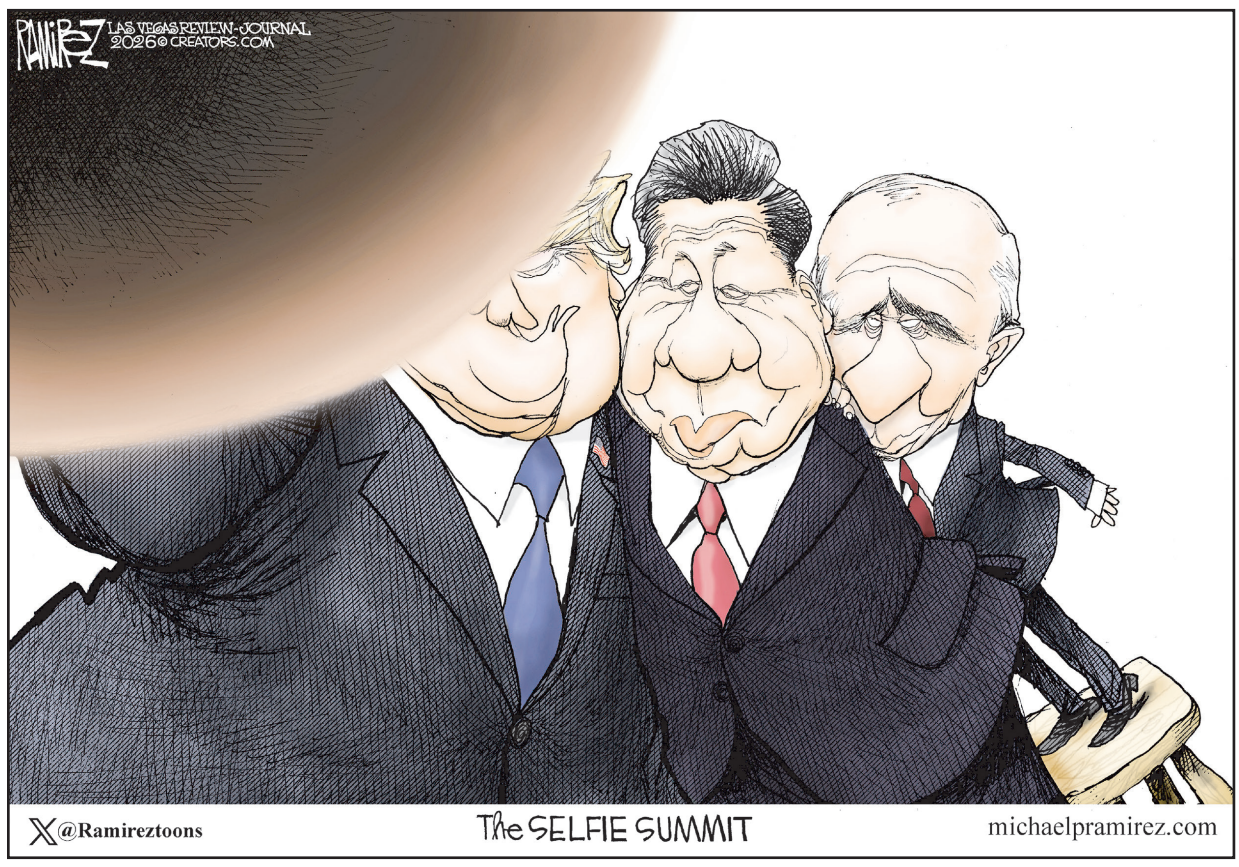
You know, just like Rubio. There are as many different versions of the man as there are options laid out before him. Rubio could finish out the last two years of the Trump administration. Or he could leave now and prepare for a White House run. Or he could skip 2028, assuming anyone tied to this administration would lose in this anti-MAGA climate. Then Rubio could come back in 2032, when he'll still be relatively young at 61, and challenge the Democratic incumbent.

Back in the Senate basement, the two Republican senators wanted me to know that they were working on a bill that would give undocumented young people who arrived in the United States as children temporary deferment of their deportation and a work permit.

That should sound familiar. About six months later, Obama would take executive action to do pretty much the same thing. He called the program DACA (Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals).

The Republican senators told me they had a partner in that effort: Rubio. But given the combustible nature of the immigration issue, they had to be careful not to put him out front just yet. As one of them said: "We have big plans for Marco."

Now what a lot of us really want to know is what Rubio has planned for himself. power.



Eight Arrested For DUI During DUI Checkpoint and Saturation Patrols

On Saturday, November 21, 2026, the Oxnard Police Department arrested eight drivers for DUI during simultaneous DUI checkpoint and saturation patrols.

The DUI checkpoint was held on Rose Avenue at Tiesa Lane from 6:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Twenty-four drivers were cited for operating a vehicle unlicensed or with a suspended/revoked license. 661 vehicles were contacted.

DUI checkpoint locations are determined based on reported incidents of impaired driving-related crashes. The primary purpose of DUI checkpoints is to promote public safety by taking suspected impaired drivers off roads.

The next DUI checkpoint will be held in December.

Funding for this program was provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Elder Financial Abuse Arrest

On November 11, 2026, officers from the Oxnard Police Department responded to a senior assisted living facility in the 1100 block of Dahlia St, North Oxnard. Officers met with a 75-year-old victim who stated that for the last several weeks money has been missing from her wallet. The victim placed a "nanny-camera" in her residence that captured a female subject entering her home and taking money out of the victim's purse and wallet while the victim was gone. The total loss over the weeks was approximately $700 in cash.

Investigators were able to identify the suspect as 20-year-old Janet Mendoza, who is a caretaker at the facility. On Nov 19th, Oxnard Police Property Crimes detectives from the Forgery/Fraud Division conducted follow-ups and were able to locate Mendoza, who had since been terminated from the facility, and take her into custody at her residence. Mendoza was booked into Ventura County Jail for burglary and elder abuse.

CSUCI Professor Appointed to Ventura County First 5 Commission

Cal State Channel Islands (CSUCI) Professor Mari Riojas-Cortez has been appointed to the Ventura County First 5 Commission, where she will help guide efforts to support the health, development and well-being of young children and their families throughout the county.

Riojas-Cortez is chair of the Early Childhood Studies program in CSUCI's School of Education. She brings decades of experience in early childhood education, including teaching, research and work supporting young children and their families.

Mari Riojas-Cortez

"I started out in 1988 as a bilingual prekindergarten teacher in a public school in Texas and have spent my whole career working to support young children and their families in different capacities," Riojas-Cortez said. "I want to bring that experience to the First 5 Ventura County Commission."

The nine-member commission, appointed by the Ventura County Board of Supervisors, oversees First 5 Ventura County and provides leadership and direction for programs and initiatives that promote the well-being of children from birth through age five. Funded primarily through California's tobacco tax revenues, First 5 supports early childhood health, education, development and family-strengthening programs, with an emphasis on giving children a strong foundation for lifelong success.

"My research on Latinx family partnerships and young dual language learners has taught me how much culturally sustaining, evidence-based programs matter," Riojas-Cortez said. "I would love to help shape decisions that support young children right here in Ventura County. Serving on this commission is a natural extension of the work I have been involved in since entering the field of early childhood education."

Riojas-Cortez's appointment began Sept. 1, 2026, and runs through Jan. 8, 2029.

Dear Annie®

Navigating Family Dynamics With Grace

By Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I loved reading the different responses from both grandmothers in the "Daughter-in-Law's Dilemma." I'm fortunate to be the daughter-in-law of the most amazing people. My husband is the youngest of seven children, all of whom have two or three kids of their own. We have two boys, ages 19 and 20, and agree that boys often gravitate more toward the woman's family, which has been true in our experience. My husband isn't the type to reach out, but it's not because he doesn't care.

My solution has been to host the holidays for both sides of the family. Yes, it's massive and chaotic, but seeing cousins from both sides together and watching my husband enjoy his time with his siblings, while I get to enjoy mine, is incredible! I make a point to regularly call his parents and put them on speakerphone. I also plan trips twice a year to visit them since they retired out of the country, ensuring our kids are just as close to his parents as they are to mine.

The result after 25 years? Both sides of our families love each other and even make plans on their own to get together! I know there will come a time when my boys marry and move on, and I'm OK with any imbalance in time spent, as long as they're happy. I'm always willing to initiate get-togethers and offer help without overstepping. A positive attitude goes a long way. His family has never felt slighted or left out because I value them as much as my own, and I appreciate how he loves my parents, too. -- The More the Merrier

Dear The More the Merrier: What a wonderful letter! You sound kindhearted and very thoughtful. My guess is that your sons will marry women similar to you, and the beautiful cycle of having both sets of grandparents involved will continue when you are a grandparent. Bravo!

Dear Annie: I appreciated your thoughts to "Walk Away," a woman asking for guidance on how to feel OK with walking away from toxic family members (in this case, a narcissistic mom).

I have been in "Walked Away's" shoes before with multiple family members. The following has helped me immensely:

It's often said that walking away is about loving yourself ... but walking away is also about loving them. Walking away gives them space to self-reflect if they can and a chance to change if they want. Honoring their free-will choices to be as they are is also an act of love.

Thank you for giving attention to this. It takes courage to walk away. -- Walk Away

Dear Walk Away: Thank you for your letter.

The working class is nearly half people of color, new EPI report finds

The working class is more diverse than ever, according to a new Economic Policy Institute report that provides national and state-level data.

The traditional definition of the working class comprises workers with less than a bachelor's degree. Under this definition:

- In 1979, the working class was over 80% white. Today, Black, Hispanic, Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI), and Native American people collectively account for nearly half of the working class.
- One-fifth of the working class was born outside the United States, and 11.6% are non-U.S. citizens.

The report also presents a broader definition of the working class: workers whose family income is in the bottom 75%—below $150,000 per year—regardless of educational level or job type. A more expansive definition should be considered because the wage boost from getting a college degree is lower than it used to be, and underemployment—along with racial and gender pay disparities—can mean the economic status of graduates of color and women is more like some nongraduates.

Under this broader definition:

- The working class remains similarly diverse in terms of race and ethnicity.
- 31.5% hold a bachelor's degree or higher, and most of those college graduates hold professional or managerial jobs.
- Traditionally women-dominated jobs in teaching, child care, and nursing account for some of the largest shares of working-class managerial and professional occupations.

The working-class share varies widely by state, reflecting differences in costs of living and labor force participation.

"The working class has long outgrown the old image narrowly represented by white tradesmen in hard hats. Shifting trends in U.S. immigration and labor force participation over the last five decades have created a more racially diverse working class than ever before," said Valerie Wilson, co-author of the report and director of EPI's Program on Race, Ethnicity, and the Economy. "Improving economic conditions for today's working class requires policies that meet the needs of all these workers."

It's a sad fact of life: If it seems too good to be true, beware!

you how to make money investing in real estate, the stock market, or various self-employment strategies, and more.

She described one FTC shut down, "My Online Business Education." In that case, the FTC last year was able to return $23 million to people who'd been scammed trying to learn how to make money.

The FTC has more information on this particular type of rip-off available at ftc.gov/IncomeScams.

Go the extra mile to avoid being scammed

"We're all potentially vulnerable to the increasingly sophisticated and varied ways people and organizations all around the globe are tricking people out of their hard-earned money.

She and her colleague, Rosario Mendez shared some examples of these tricks and some strategies for avoiding them.

High among their suggestions: Be careful, and do your research. For instance, Daffan said, when it comes to bogus job offers that could eventually cost you money, scammers are getting better and better at looking legitimate.

If you're contacted by someone claiming a company wants to hire you, or that they're helping an employer find workers, check it out. Go the extra mile, research that company, find their telephone number without relying on the numbers you were given, and call them to ensure they're truly hiring for this position you're considering – and that the people you're talking to are really the ones doing the hiring.

"It takes the extra step of reaching out to the company to know it's legitimate," Daffan said. "That really is the safest thing to do these days."

There's more on this type of scam at ftc.gov/JobScams.

And never send money to someone expecting you'll soon be able to earn even more back. Or if you're asked to buy equipment up front, don't!

Be careful what you disclose

Another common crooked strategy has been to get people to agree to mail out gift cards after receiving a check seemingly worth more than the value of those gift cards.

But here's the problem: It's not enough to see the deposit was made to your account; it takes banks days at least to actually clear that check deposit. And if the check proves to be no good, you have to pay that money back to your bank.

And meanwhile, guess what? Those gift cards you sent out went right back to the scammers and are almost impossible to recover by the time you learn their check bounced.

Sometimes something as simple as providing personal information winds up costing you. Sure, it seems reasonable that someone offering you a job might want your Social Security number, or information on where you bank so they can pay you with a direct deposit to your account, or other personal information such as your name and address, information for a background check, etcetera.

But the people requesting the information might only be doing so to then sell it to another criminal operation, and making their money that way. So be very careful about what you disclose until you're confident you know who you're dealing with.

Coming forward to report scams

And don't fall for claims there's been a problem delivering something you maybe didn't even order. Clicking on a link accompanying such a text or email just provides the scammer new ways to reach you and collect your data, or know you might not be wise to them yet.

In general, if you get emails, text messages or telephone calls from names or numbers you don't recognize, your safest bet is just to ignore them.

Considering how often victims don't even want to report having been robbed to people whose job is to help them, it was noteworthy that this particular person intended to tell her story herself at the briefing, an unusually brave move.

Making a report won't impact anyone's immigration status, the FTC speakers said, and they strongly encouraged everyone to report any suspicions they might have to ReportFraud@ftc.gov and ReporteFraude/ftc.gov (ReporteFraude.ftc.gov-presentar-reporte), whether they're the intended victim or only worried for a friend, neighbor or relative.

Si está buscando empleo, ¡los estafadores lo están buscando a usted!

Viene de la página 3

JobScams.

Y nunca envíe dinero a alguien esperando que pronto podrá recuperar aún más. O si le piden que compre equipo por adelantado, ¡no lo haga!

Sea cauteloso con la información que comparte

Otra estrategia fraudulenta habitual ha sido conseguir que la gente acepte enviar tarjetas regalo por correo después de recibir un cheque aparentemente por un valor superior al de esas tarjetas regalo.

Pero he aquí el problema: no basta con ver que el ingreso se ha hecho en tu cuenta; los bancos tardan días como mínimo en autorizar ese depósito por cheque. Y si el cheque resulta no ser bueno, tendrá que devolver ese dinero a su banco.

Y mientras tanto, ¿adivine qué? Esas tarjetas regalo que envió fueron a parar directamente a manos de los estafadores y es casi imposible recuperarlas cuando se entere de que su cheque ha sido rechazado.

A veces, algo tan sencillo como facilitar información personal acaba costándole caro. Claro, parece razonable que alguien que le ofrece un trabajo quiera su número de la Seguridad Social, o información sobre su banco para poder pagarle con un depósito directo en su cuenta, u otros datos personales como su nombre y dirección, información para una comprobación de antecedentes, etcétera.

Pero las personas que solicitan la información podrían estar haciéndolo sólo para venderla después a otra operación delictiva y ganar dinero de esa manera. Así que tenga mucha cautela con lo que revela hasta que esté seguro de saber con quién está tratando.

Reporte las estafas

Y no caiga en engaños alegando que ha habido un problema en la entrega de algo que quizá ni siquiera ha pedido. Hacer clic en un enlace que acompaña a un mensaje de texto o de correo electrónico de este tipo sólo proporciona al estafador nuevas formas de ponerse en contacto con usted y recopilar su información, o de saber que tal vez aún no se ha dado cuenta.

En general, si recibe correos electrónicos, mensajes de texto o llamadas telefónicas de nombres o números que no reconoce, lo más seguro es ignorarlos.

Méndez describió el caso reciente de un inmigrante, quien deseoso de trabajar, se dejó engañar por un anuncio de televisión en español de "Moda Latina", que pedía a la gente que pusiera dinero a cambio de artículos de lujo que luego podían vender con beneficio.

Cuando se interesó y llamó al anunciante, pronto la amenazaron diciéndole que se había hecho un compromiso y que más le valía tener un giro postal preparado cuando le entregaran la caja de joyaría para vender.

Así que consiguió el cheque de caja por 299 dólares, pero el paquete que recibió a cambio no cumplía con las promesas de 14 kilates de Moda Latina. Cuando les llamó, lo único que obtuvo fue una oferta para venderle cosas más caras, con promesas similares.

Teniendo en cuenta que a menudo las víctimas ni siquiera quieren reportar los robos a las personas cuyo trabajo es ayudarles, llama la atención que esta persona en particular, tuviera la intención de contar su historia en la reunión informativa, una actitud inusualmente valiente.

Según los ponentes de la FTC, la presentación de una denuncia no afectará a la situación migratoria de nadie, y animaron encarecidamente a todos a comunicar cualquier sospecha que pueda tener a ReportFraud@ftc.gov y ReporteFraude/ftc.gov (ReporteFraude.ftc.gov-presentar-reporte, tanto si es la víctima prevista como si sólo está preocupado por un amigo, vecino o pariente.

Ocho arrestados por conducir bajo los efectos del alcohol o drogas en retén

El pasado sábado 21 de noviembre de 2026, el Departamento de Policía de Oxnard detuvo a ocho conductores por conducir bajo los efectos del alcohol o drogas (DUI, por sus siglas en inglés) durante un operativo que incluyó un control de sobriedad y patrullajes intensivos.

El retén de sobriedad se llevó a cabo en la intersección de Rose Avenue y Tiesa Lane, entre las 6:30 p. m. y las 12:30 a. m.

24 conductores fueron citados por manejar un vehículo sin licencia o con una licencia suspendida o revocada. Se realizó una intervención en 661 vehículos.

La ubicación de los controles de sobriedad se determina con base en los incidentes registrados de choques relacionados con el manejar bajo los efectos del alcohol o drogas. El objetivo principal de estos controles es promover la seguridad pública, retirando de las calles a los conductores que se sospecha están bajo los efectos de sustancias.

El próximo control de sobriedad se realizará en diciembre.

La financiación para este programa provino de una subvención de la Oficina de Seguridad Vial de California (California Office of Traffic Safety), a través de la Administración Nacional de Seguridad del Tráfico en las Carreteras (National Highway Traffic Safety Administration).

Dolores Huerta recibe el último adiós de la comunidad que la acompañó en su lucha

Familiares, activistas y cientos de miembros de la comunidad se reunieron para despedir a Huerta, histórica líder del movimiento por los derechos de los trabajadores agrícolas y cofundadora del sindicato United Farm Workers (UFW), en una ceremonia que celebró su legado de más de seis décadas de lucha social.

Familiares, activistas y cientos de miembros de la comunidad se reunieron este viernes en Bakersfield (California) para despedir a Dolores Huerta, histórica líder del movimiento por los derechos de los trabajadores agrícolas y cofundadora del sindicato United Farm Workers (UFW), en una ceremonia que celebró su legado de más de seis décadas de lucha social.

El funeral, que incluyó una bendición interreligiosa y la participación de líderes de distintas confesiones, se celebró en el Dignity Health Arena, donde sus hijos, nietos, bisnietos y tataranietos estuvieron arropados por centenares de vecinos, representantes de los principales sindicatos, organizaciones proinmigrantes, defensores de los derechos civiles y funcionarios electos.

El cuerpo de Huerta, fallecida el pasado 28 de octubre a los 96 años, fue recibido en el exterior del recinto con un ceremonial de danzantes aztecas. En el interior, la líder fue homenajeada con mariachis, que tocaron durante más de tres horas, en la primera parte del programa.

"Ella fue una fuerza de justicia", dijo Lori de León, hija de la líder sindical, durante el funeral, transmitido por las redes sociales. "El espíritu de mi madre vivirá en cada uno de ustedes que luchan por la justicia", agregó en medio de una lluvia de aplausos en honor a la sindicalista.

Huerta nació en Dawson (Nuevo México) en 1930, pero creció en California después de que sus padres se divorciaran y su madre se trasladara con ella y sus cuatro hermanos al Estado Dorado.

La activista forjó desde el Valle Central de California una historia de lucha. Inspirada por su padre, que ejerció como activista sindical y más tarde como legislador estatal, Huerta comenzó a destacar desde joven en la defensa de los derechos civiles de los latinos y de los sectores más desfavorecidos.

En 1962, Huerta fundó junto a César Chávez el sindicato Trabajadores Agrícolas Unidos (UFW), desde el que ambos encabezaron la lucha por mejores salarios y condiciones laborales para los trabajadores del campo y sus familias. Su activismo también se extendió a la defensa de los derechos de todos los trabajadores, las mujeres, la comunidad LGBTQ y los inmigrantes.

Este viernes se escucharon en el recinto los testimonios de decenas de personas sobre el impacto que la activista dejó en sus vidas.

"Nuestra familia se ha sentido profundamente conmovida por las condolencias, los recuerdos y los homenajes que hemos recibido de personas cuyas vidas fueron marcadas por nuestra madre, Dolores", señaló la familia de Huerta en un comunicado difundido esta tarde.

"Innumerables personas han compartido cómo ella cambió el rumbo de sus vidas, y cada historia nos ha recordado hasta qué punto dedicó su vida a ayudar y apoyar a los demás", agregaron.

A lo largo de su trayectoria, Huerta recibió importantes reconocimientos por su labor, entre ellos la Medalla Presidencial de la Libertad, otorgada en 2012 por el entonces presidente Barack Obama por su defensa de los sectores más desfavorecidos, y su incorporación al Salón Nacional de la Fama de las Mujeres en 1993 por su destacada contribución al movimiento laboral.

En marzo de 2026, la líder sindical rompió más de seis décadas de silencio al denunciar públicamente que sufrió abusos sexuales por parte de Chávez durante los años sesenta, de los que nacieron dos de sus hijos. Explicó que mantuvo los hechos en secreto para proteger al movimiento campesino.

Huerta se mantuvo activa en la política, apoyó a candidatos demócratas y promovió la participación electoral de la comunidad latina. También fue una firme crítica de Donald Trump y de sus políticas migratorias, especialmente de la separación de familias.

La semana estuvo repleta de eventos dedicados a la memoria de Huerta, su valentía, resiliencia e impacto en la comunidad. Entre ellos destacó un homenaje de cuerpo presente celebrado el lunes pasado en el Capitolio de California, con el que se convirtió en la primera persona ajena al ámbito político del Estado Dorado en recibir este honor.

El homenaje de este viernes se prolongó hasta la tarde y se esperaba que concluyera con actuaciones de artistas latinos como Ozomatli, Las Cafeteras y el grupo Los Lobos.

Posible acuerdo de Caro Quintero antes del 30 de noviembre

El juez federal Frederic Block emplazó a la Fiscalía de EE.UU. y la defensa del narcotraficante mexicano Rafael Caro Quintero a informarle sobre la posibilidad de que alcancen un acuerdo de culpabilidad antes del 30 de noviembre, mientras continúan las negociaciones.

De acuerdo con el archivo judicial del caso, tras una audiencia celebrada en Nueva York, el juez dio de plazo hasta el 30 de noviembre a las partes para que le informen sobre "el estado de sus conversaciones para una posible declaración de culpabilidad y sobre la probabilidad de que se celebre un juicio con jurado".

"Si las partes llegan a un acuerdo para una declaración de culpabilidad, el juez Block aceptará dicha declaración", indica el archivo.

La Fiscalía informó al juez de que ha entregado material probatorio y que seguirá haciéndolo a medida que esté disponible, de conformidad con sus obligaciones de divulgación, agrega la información.

Durante la audiencia de seguimiento, el juez mantuvo la selección del jurado y el juicio para el 8 de marzo de 2027, y convocó la siguiente audiencia en el caso el 14 de enero.

Según el medio Courthouse News, el fiscal adjunto Andy Wang dijo al juez que las partes siguen en "conversaciones previas al juicio", que hay avances "sustanciales" y que presentarán pronto una propuesta a Caro Quintero, de 74 años, que estuvo presente en la audiencia.

El juez instó a las partes lograr ese acuerdo, recordando que antes del juicio hay un calendario de mociones sobre la evidencia, por lo que no es práctico entrar en esa fase si efectivamente se produce un acuerdo de culpabilidad.

"La corte necesita claridad o, de lo contrario, fijar una nueva fecha para el juicio", indicó el juez, de 92 años, de acuerdo con el medio.

Caro Quintero, fundador del extinto cartel de Guadalajara entró a la corte con un uniforme color caqui de preso, esposado de los pies y bajo vigilancia de tres alguaciles, detalla.

El capo mexicano enfrenta varios cargos por narcotráfico y conspiración para cometer asesinato por su participación en el secuestro, la tortura y el asesinato en 1985 del agente de la Administración para el Control de Drogas (DEA) Enrique 'Kiki' Camarena.

Fue sentenciado a 40 años de prisión en México por el asesinato del agente federal, pero fue liberado en 2013 cuando un tribunal anuló su sentencia, tras lo cual continuó con el narcotráfico hasta que fue detenido nuevamente en 2022.

En febrero de 2025 el gobierno de Claudia Sheinbaum le envió a EEUU junto a otros 28 presos que reclamaba este país entre éstos Vicente Carrillo Fuentes, antiguo líder del cartel de Juárez.
